DEFICIT DIMINISHING

The best news to taxpayers in recent years the Tulare Times believes, is the statement of Governor Merriam that the State of California is gaining on the deficit and should have a balanced budget in three years without necessity of additional new tax levies.

Latest estimates indicate that instead of the $50,000,000 deficit at the end of the year, only $50,000,000 will exist and that during the next two years this will be entirely wiped out.

The successful solution of the state's financial problems, however is based on maintaining the present tax levies. Greatest danger to eliminating the deficit lies in threats of repealing some of the existing tax levies, namely the state income tax and state sales tax.

While taxpayers generally would appreciate lower taxes, all realize the strenuous demands which have been made upon the state treasury during the depression, particularly for welfare and relief. Most would be happy to know as indicated that the present levies will bring the state out of the "red" in three years without additional levies. Should the sales or income taxes be rescinded, it is plain that the revenue must come from somewhere and either a hundred and one nuisance taxes will develop or a general ad valorem tax levied.

It would seem that the wisest course is to leave tax levies stand as they are with assurance of balancing the budget within the coming three-year period. Tampering with the financial structure at this time would remove the only hopeful certainty yet developed. It is a plain case of the wisest course being let well enough alone.

MINISTER IS KILLED AS ARMY RIOTS

SINGAPORE (Wed.) Feb. 26 UP—Official dispatches today said that Premier Keisuke Okada, Finance Minister Korekiyo Takahashi and Admiral Viscount Makato Saito, lord keeper of the privy seal, all were assassinated in today's military coup in Tokio.

The murders were committed by "young officer patriots" of the army, dispatches said.

SHANGHAI (Wednesday) Feb. 26.—UP—Soldiers of one of the regiments stationed at Tokio revolted today, assassinated Minister of Finance Korekiyo Takahashi, seized metropolitan police headquarters and started a reign of terror designed to overthrow the government of Premier Keisuke Okada, according to fragmentary advices from the Japanese capital.

One message said Premier Okada and other statesmen also were murdered and that there was considerable fighting in the streets. It was doubted, however, by students of Japanese politics. Another report was that Okada was wounded.

Martial law was reported declared and it was said Emperor Hirohito had summoned members of the war council to consider

WOMAN JURY MAY DECIDE M'CORD FATE

MARTINEZ, Feb. 25—Mrs. Ruth [illegible] McCord, ex-social service director, will face trial in the Superior court tomorrow morning under an indictment charging her with abuse of her trust, namely the misappropriation of public money. Specifically she is accused of converting to her own use the sum of $60.98, the price of a railroad ticket for Mrs. Ida Jackson, an aged woman, from Richmond to Moffat, Colorado.

Mrs. McCord

CASE AROUSES INTEREST

By reason of the prominence of the position once held by Mrs. McCord, her indictment as the result of the Jackson jury and her flight and subsequent arrest nearly a year afterwards by Sheriff John A. Miller in Salt Lake City, the case has not only aroused public interest but its discussion has resulted in the formation of two distinct groups, one believing in her guilt, and the other stoutly maintaining her innocence, which they claim will be shown when all the testimony and evidence are presented.

MORE INTEREST INJECTED

Additional interest has been injected into the case through the en-

Dictatorship And Terrorism Charged In General Ouster

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—UP—Angry charges of "terrorism" and "dictatorship" were flung at the New Deal today in stormy debate over the swift punishment of Major Genera Johnson Hagood, suspended as commander of the eighth corp area after describing WPA grants as "stage money."

STORM BREAKS LOOSE

The name of the late General William (Billy) Mitchell; the identity of another high ranking army officer accused of being politically active; free speech and state quarrels over WPA projects, were plunged into the word battle which threatened to lift Hagood's suspension into a top flight political issue as army officials hastened to explain that the phrase—"by order of the president"—which headed the Hagood suspension order, was a routine one and did not signify personal intervention by Mr. Roosevelt. Congressional authorities generally regarded it as disciplinary action. Representative Thomas (Democrat, Texas) has suggested impeachment of Hagood's superiors for "the damnable outrage."

CHARGES HURLED

Today, Majority Leader Joe T. Robinson, flushed and angry charged from the floor that Republicans acted far more harshly toward Mitchell, court martialled for his stinging criticism of the air corps, and described the action against Hagood as "modest discipline." He glared at Senator Daniel O. Hastings, Republican, Delaware, who initiated the debate, and accused him of blocking efforts by the Democrats to wipe the stain from Mitchell's record.

Hastings lashed back with charges that the Hagood action constituted "terrorism." For two hours he flayed the New Deal, citing activities of the Senate lobby committee and tax actions started against

8 BALLOTS 7 HOURS TO GET VERDICT

MARTINEZ, Feb. 25.—Clyde Andrus, 33, of Richmond, walked out of the courtroom of Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnston at 9:30 o'clock tonight, following a not guilty verdict of five minutes before, acquitting him of a charge of manslaughter growing out of the death of Miss Virginia Christensen, a Salinas schoolteacher last June 30th in an automobile collision on Garrity Flat, Pinole.

JURORS THANKED

Andrus thanked the individual members of the jury and his chief counsel, Thomas M. Carlson of Richmond expressed his appreciation and said if there was any doubt in their minds as to Andrus future conduct he would, personally pledge that his client would lead an exemplary life and never place them in a position of being criticized for their verdict.

EIGHT BALLOTS TAKEN

It is understood that the jury took eight ballots all of which stood ten to two for acquittal. At 9 o'clock Judge Johnston summoned the jury before him and stated that as it appeared they would be unable to reach a verdict he would have them locked up for the night. The jury expressed the belief that within another hour an agreement

Meanwhile, the swollen San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers, lapped at the rim of weakened levees in many places as overflow waters continued to submerge farm lands in the Stockton, Merced and Santa Cruz districts.

FIGHTING AUNT OF JOE LOUIS BOWS TO FANS

PRATT CITY, Ala., Feb. 25.—UP—The massive aunt of Joe Louis straightened to her full height and almost filled the doorway of her home as she said:

"I was the fighter in this family long before Joe Louis ever took to fighting. Why, when I was a child I was so strong that I used to go around looking for somebody to whip!"

Mary Tucker, 6 feet tall and now 65 years old, still vigorous after a rugged life as a field hand on a farm and foreman on land-clearing jobs in Birmingham, pointed to a large, framed picture above her fireplace.

There, crouched in a fighting pose, was a picture of her nephew —the "Brown Bomber."

JOE'S ALWAYS SILENT

"If he were here right now," she said, "he'd be as quiet as that picture. His mother writes me that 'Joe says he'll be down to see you some time.' When Joe says that much, he's done a half-a-day's talking.

"He's that quiet.

"That's one difference between us. And another difference — he fights for money, and I fought for sport!"

Mary dropped into the rocking chair at the fireplace where she sits and sews quilts—"now that I'm not as strong as I used to be, since I had a stroke."

"Why on the farm down near Lafayette, Ala., I would pick two rows of cotton at one time," she boasted. "And I could pick two rows of fodder the same way."

BOSSED LABOR GANG

When Mary migrated to Birmingham, she got a wagon and a mule and peddled coal on the streets. Then she went into bigger business. She rounded up mules and men to work for her, when she contracted to clear land for new houses.

When they were dynamiting rocks, scraping ground and building rock walls, the muscular Mary would help. She says she couldn't just sit around idle.

"Once when somebody asked me to build a rock wall, I didn't have a trowel along with me. So I just pitched in and mixed the mortar with my bare hand!"

WEIGHED 237 ONCE

"I don't weigh but 198 now," she lamented, "but I used to weigh 237."

She glanced back at the picture of the nephew who brought pride to the little weatherbeaten house in this Birmingham suburb.

"I ain't seen Joe Louis since he was 11, when my sister's family moved to Detroit from Alabama. I'm not expecting him to send me any present. He's got seven brothers and sisters to help out.

"His mother wanted to make a violin player out of him. But she might have known he'd have to do sumpin stronger'n that—coming from this family!"

WILENTZ WILL BATTLE BRUNO RELEASE PLAN

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 25—UP—Attorney General David T. Wilentz angry at slurs against the prosecutors of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, came storming back to New Jersey tonight to take command of the fight to strap the convicted murderer of the Lindbergh baby into the electric chair.

Racing northward from Florida on a fast train, Wilentz told a United Press correspondent that he would oppose any further reprieves for Hauptmann—or any other attempt to delay his execution in the week of March 30 —unless legitimate new evidence is found.

WILENTZ IS IRED

Insinuations by Governor Harold G. Hoffman that the state paid Millard Whited to testify against Hauptmann and promised him part of the $25,000 reward offered by New Jersey, were answered by Wilentz in this way:

'No member of the prosecution even so much as discussed the matter of rewards with any witness."

NO NEW EVIDENCE

His face flush with anger, Wilentz said no attempt would be made by his office to bring Dr. John F. Condon or Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh back to the United States.

"Prosecution witnesses are not going to devote the rest of their lives to Bruno Richard Hauptmann," he added.

"No new evidence justifying another trial or another appeal to the New Jersey Court of Pardons has been found," Wilentz said, and added:

"Whenever the defense can show any clean-cut evidence that Hauptmann is innocent I will be the first to admit it."

HEAD OF U. S. PARKS KILLED IN CAR CRASH

DEMING, N. M., Feb. 25—UP—Roger Toll, superintendent of Yellowstone National Park, and George M. Wright, head of the wild life division of the National Parks Service, were killed, when their car driven by Toll, collided head-on with another machine eight miles east of here today.

An unidentified youth, riding in the other car, was killed and three other persons in that machine, which bore a Connecticut license were reported in serious condition in Deming hospital, their identities unknown because they could not be questioned.

Both cars were completely wrecked, as they struck with terrific force. It was estimated that both must have been traveling at speeds approaching 80 miles per hour.

Sheriff R. G. Franey, who with his deputies aided in taking the injured persons to the hospital, said his investigation of the accident indicated that a rear tire of the Connecticut car had blown out, causing it to swerve into the path of Toll's car.

He said that the Connecticut car plowed almost halfway through the Toll machine.

Toll was killed instantly, and Wright died within two hours after the accident in Deming hospital.

An hour later the unidentified boy died. Authorities believed that the four persons riding in the Connecticut car, a man and woman and boy and girl, all were members of the same family.

SAFE BLOWERS SEEKING CASH FOR TALMADGE

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 25.—UP—Three locksmiths with acetylene torches tonight attacked the steel walls of the state treasury safe so that Governor Eugene Talmadge's new career as state financial dictator could become an actuality.

Talmadge used National Guardsmen to oust State Treasurer George H. Hamilton and State Comptroller William B. Harrison so that he himself could become dictator of finance. He was successful in every respect but one—he couldn't open the treasury vault which contains the ready cash he needs.

SAFE CLOSED

Hamilton, who with Harrison has bitterly opposed Talmadge's experiment in unorthodox government precipitated the crisis by slamming the vault doors as husky Guardsmen ushered him from office. An automatic 72-hour time clock accomplished the rest.

The red-gallused governor was desperate. There are state payrolls and other financial outlays to meet but no legal authority or tender to meet them. Hamilton and Harrison refused to heed the governor's demands and proceeded to exhaust the situation in a maze of technicality.

RECORDS SOUGHT

Ready cash, estimated at $3,000,000 is in Georgia banks under Hamilton's name. The deposed treasurer warned state depositories that they would honor checks signed by his successor, Talmadge supporter, beginning in March.

Schottland also reported approximately 1600 persons dropped from SRA administrative rolls in the last month. The curtailment is proceeding at the rate of approximately 400 a week.

Schottland, acting SHA Administrator, today ordered 2000 employable cases shifted from State relief to their legal status as charges of the counties of which they are legal residents.

The State's indigent law makes such cases county responsibilities, Schottland said. The altered status of the unemployables is made necessary by the reduction of the State SRA budget to $1,500,000 a month.

HOSPITAL TO SEEK COLLEGE RECOGNITION

To meet rules of the American College of Surgeons, the Richmond Cottage Hospital has organized its staff and has made application for recognition by the college. Under college rules, the hospital records for a year must be presented before recognition is given.

The hospital must maintain an organized staff of physicians and other attaches, according to college rules.

Dr. U. S. Abbott has been named president of the staff of physicians. Dr. M. L. Fernandez is vice president; Dr. Clara Spalding, secretary; J. S. Rafter, executive secretary, and Dr. E. R. Guinan, Dr. Kaho Daily and Dr. J. M. McCullough are members of the executive committee.

It is the duties of the executive committee to see that the hospital is operated in accordance with the requirements of the college; that doctors keep proper records; that the hospital has proper equipment with which doctors may work; to get speakers for monthly meetings and to discuss all hospital procedures.

In addition, the staff includes a historian, Miss Grace Cornish, who must keep a complete record of all cases on forms specified by the American College of Surgeons.

Meetings of the hospital staff will be held on the last Wednesday of every month. The next meeting will be held today, when Dr. Charles Dukes of Oakland will speak on "Hospital Standardization."

The hospital has a capacity of 40 beds, and equipment to take care of any emergency. Its equipment is equal to that of any hospital in San Francisco or Oakland, the only difference being in the number of beds available, hospital officials declare.

The hospital has been operated for the past year and a half by J. S. Rafter and Miss Agnes Driscoll. Many improvements have been made during that time, as well as additions to the equipment.

Dr. Robert Glenn of Merritt Hospital, Oakland, is the pathologist, while Dr. Carl B. Bowen of Oakland is connected with the hospital as Roentgenologist.

Dr. Williamson of the American College of Surgeons visited the hospital here about three months ago with Dr. C. L. Abbott and expressed surprise that Richmond had such a well equipped hospital. He urged that the hospital might easily attain recognition by the college by merely going through the process of organizing its staff of physicians and keeping the proper records. While this entails a considerable expense to the hospital, it was decided to meet the requirement and make the application for recognition, which has now been done.

Today's Safe Driving Hint

By The National Safety Council

TURNING RADIUS

Rare is the driver who knows, except in a general way, the turning radius of his car. Many accidents are caused because of this lack of knowledge.

The lesson is really one of the simplest among the many that a good driver should learn. The easiest and most effective way is to get out somewhere in a sufficiently wide space and have some one mark your turning radius with chalk.

Make the shortest turn possible. Then get out of your car and study the line. You will probably find the curve much wider than you expected, and a study of the chalk mark will convince you quickly that there are well defined limits to what you can do with the steering wheel in turning.

The experience should prove mighty helpful, particularly for the beginning driver. Try it out at your first opportunity.

WOMAN IS ACQUITTED IN MURDER

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—UP—Mrs. Amy Dumbrell, grey-haired matron tried for the murder of her husband, John, tonight was acquitted of the charge by a jury of seven men and five women after they had deliberated four hours.

The jury received the case at 12:45 P. M. today after hearing pleas by defense counsel in behalf of the defendant, who previously told the court how she had shot her husband a prominent San Francisco fraternal leader and branch bank manager, after discovering he was "consorting with another woman."

NEGLECT IS TOLD

From the witness stand, Mrs. Dumbrell told a story of alleged neglect by her husband over a long period of years, climaxed by a 'pure chance' meeting of her husband and a 'red-haired' woman in downtown San Francisco.

The meeting, she said, confirmed her suspicions that there was "another woman" who was "breaking up her home." Discovery of the affair, she testified, was followed by several days' pleading with her husband "to talk the thing over with the woman, and close the book so our family life could become happy again."

Before Judge Frank T. Deasy began his instructions to the jury, Assistant District Attorney Harmon Skillin asked the jurors to bring a verdict of guilty if they found "beyond a reasonable possibility of doubt that Mrs. Dumbrell committed the murder."

WOMAN CRIES

Armon Skillin, assistant district attorney in charge of prosecution of the case, said in his final argument:

"It tears my heart to have to ask that the laws of the State of California be observed in this case, but the law makes no difference for sex or age."

Tears of joy shone in Mrs. Dumbrells eyes when the verdict was read. She was embraced by her son, and the two walked out of the court, arm in arm.

WIDESPREAD INTEREST

Defense Attorney William T. Sweigert completed an impassioned plea to the jury for acquittal by asking that Mrs. Dumbrell "be given a chance to grieve over her tragedy, not behind penitentiary walls, but in some quiet place where she can't bother anybody and nobody can bother her."

"I pray that this 19 year old boy (referring to John Dumbrell, Jr.) will take care of this poor wreck in her few declining years, for surely she has given the last full measure of a mother's devotion." Sobbing throughout the packed, tense courtroom was audible at this point of the summation.

The case previously had aroused widespread interest in women's club circles in San Francisco.

Sea Lion Mistaken Tries To Hitch Hike Sent Back To Sea

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 25—UP—"Sergeant" Finnegan, befuddled 700 pound sea lion whose efforts to find a new northwest passage to the Atlantic led to 15 miles up the Columbia, Willamette and Pudding rivers, was en route back to the Pacific by truck tonight.

The sea-lion, who was made an honorary member of the State police at Oregon City, last week because of aid in destroying the gill nets of poaching salmon fishermen left the Willamette valley without a shred of reputation.

Even the sex of "Sergeant" Finnegan was questioned by old sea lion experts who said the light tan color of its coat indubitably revealed it to be a female.

FINAL MISTAKE

Mrs. Finnegan made her final mistake when she left Pudding river five miles from its juncture with the Willamette and waddled painfully one and one-half miles across the pastures and fields of Alben Erickson's farm near Aurora.

Farmers Bert Jeskey and Jim Evans saw her near the highway, waving a flipper disconsolately at a passing automobile in the familiar gesture of the hitch-hiker.

Mrs. Finnegan already has become a celebrity. She peered in the window of Herbert Douthit's boathouse on St. Valentine's day and was blasted back into the river by three shotgun charges that destroyed the sight in one eye; she had entertained hundreds near Oregon City Falls with her fishing; later had splashed up the fishway and continued upstream.

MAJOR SNARL

Her appearance in a field today caused a major traffic jam. Schools closed and hundreds of pupils went to Erickson's farm in busses; farmers and business men quit work and joined the crowd.

Mrs. Finnegan, posing docilely enough for cameramen, made six-foot lunges at those who came too close.

State Fish Wardens Frank Wire and Mike Hoy and six State patrolmen lassoed Mrs. Finnegan and hoisted her into a fish commission truck with block and tackle, despite angry grunts from the ponderous explorer.

NUDIST QUEEN ARRESTED ON THEFT CHARGE

OAKLAND, Feb. 25—UP—Ann Bruckett, 19, was much more concerned tonight over a San Diego challenge to her claim of being "the original Zorina," queen of the San Diego exposition's nudist colony than she was over her arrest upon a complaint by Sint Millard, showman, charging she stole a burlesque costume.

Miss Bruckett's claims to regal splendor were questioned by Nudist Ruth Cubitt, former queen of the nudist colony and leading candidate for office this year.

The first queen, Miss Cubitt said, was "Zorine"—Zorine Stacey of St. Louis. The next was "Queen Zora"—Ruth Cubitt herself. Exposition records bear out her statement.

Miss Bruckett has been playing at a burlesque theater in Oakland. Millard alleged she appropriated some costumes. His complaint charged grand theft.

"Even if I did steal them, which I did NOT," Miss Bruckett said angrily, "the costumes were so small and flimsy, they would not warrant petty theft charges."

Dairy Company To Use Liberal Newspaper Spac

Consistent use of space in leading California newspapers will be a feature of Golden State Dairy advertising according to P. J. Murphy, who, with Richmond employees of the dairy company, last night participated in a telephone conference at which eleven hundred employees all over Northern California heard L. H. Wilson, president; and Nathan D. Danziger, advertising and sales promotion manager, discuss details of the new campaign.

"The company's plans are the most comprehensive of the years," said Mr. Murphy. "We newspapers will be largely depended upon to carry our sales message we will also make use of radio with twice-weekly Joan Andrews Mesa Flash programs, magazine, farm papers and billboards."

Addressing company employees during last night's conference, H. Wilson, Golden State president expressed the company's belief that 1936 would see further substantial increases in all lines of business.

The specialties, however, will be permanent waving, scalp corrective and hair conditioning.

As an introductory or get-acquainted offer to show the high character of the work, a free steam scalp treatment will be given with a shampoo and finger wave. See the advertisement appearing in another column of this issue of the paper.

The new place is to be known as Jessie's Beauty Studio.

39 Transients Ordered Freed

OAKLAND, Feb. 25.—UP— Irate because transients picked up in a police drive were herded into the basement of the city prison, Police Judge Edward Tyrrell today released all except two of 41 men brought before him on vagrancy charges.

About 90 men were locked in the basement without cots, beds or covers, when 200 prisoners were locked in main prison quarters accomodating 160, Judge Tyrrell was told.

"Just because a man has been living in the streets and box cars" the judge said, "is no excuse for subjecting him to the same conditions because he is jailed."

DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

MARTINEZ, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Loleta McElhaney was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Jack Leon McElhaney by Superior Judge A. F. Bray today. The plaintiff was given custody of two minor children and $40 monthly alimony. Attorney T. N. Calfee of Richmond represented her.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25— There was a long undercover scrap behind the "kick in the pants" with which Representative John O'Connor threatened Father Coughlin. It involved two committees of the House.

Last Spring the House Agriculture Committee reported favorably the Frazier-Lemke bill for refinancing $3,000,000,000 of farm mortgages through greenbacks. This is one of the chief legislative proposals advocated by the Detroit priest.

But Administration leaders promptly shunted the bill to the House Rules Committee, headed by O'Connor.

Ordinarily, a bill endorsed by so important a body as the Agriculture Committee is quickly given the right of way for floor consideration. But O'Connor and the other Administration leaders are determinedly opposed to Frazier-Lemke inflation. So, despite much heat and clamor, the bill has languished ever since in a Rules Committee pigeon-hole.

O'Connor was hotly denounced for suppressing the measure, hit back with a counter charge impugning the sincerity of the Agriculture Committee's action.

BUCK-PASSING

He claims that the committee was merely "passing a hot potato" to his group, and that Chairman Marvin Jones and the other Democratic members of the Agriculture Committee privately intimated to him that they wanted no action on the bill.

O'Connor's accusation of "buck passing" is given considerable color by the wide variance of accounts within the Agriculture Committee of its vote on the embattled Frazier Lemke bill.

Its backers claim that the count for a favorable report was 18 to 5. This was stated over the air by Coughlin. Foes of the bill contend the tally was 13 to 12. A record of the proceedings shows 8 committee members absent, 15 voting for and 5 against.

HURJA POLITICS

Emil Hurja, chief political air to Jim Farley, called up an official of the Securities Exchange Commission the other day and suggested that the SEC not be too exacting about the stock registration of a certain large watch company.

"The company," explained Emil, "operates some radio stations and they are for Roosevelt's re-election."

INCURABLE

On the last day of the Senate Munitions Committee hearings, two gun dealers stepped outside the committee room and held a private conversation in the hall.

One was J. Cuneli de Figuerola, Spanish-born American, who has supplied guns and ammunition for many a revolution. The other was Jacob Paley, who had turned from the millinery trade to salvaging machine guns junked by the U. S. Army.

Each had listened to the other's testimony, each had been castigated by the Committee for unscrupulous trade in lethal weapons.

Outside the door, Paley buttonholed Figuerola. "Say, do you want to make a deal?"

"Sure, what is it?" said Figuerola.

"I've got some machine guns I think you could use."

"All right, I'll come up and see you some time."

LEFT ATTACK

Governor Alf Landon of Kansas has hit upon the scheme of attacking the New Deal from the Left as well as from the Right.

He has hired a prominent newspaperman of radical leanings to direct his campaign on the Left front.

MONROE DOCTRINE

The Monroe Doctrine is dead.

Probably no one in the State Department would admit this, but it is the report quietly being made by Latin American diplomats to their governments.

What they say killed the Monroe Doctrine is a provision in the amended Neutrality Bill recently passed by the House and Senate. The bill specifies that in case of war between a Latin American country and a European enemy, the United States may sell to the American country but not to the European.

This, according to Latin American diplomats, presupposed that the United States would permit a European country to invade an American country and, aside from selling arms, would do nothing about it.

The Monroe Doctrine generally is interpreted as meaning the opposite. In fact, when it was invoked by President Cleveland against Great Britain and Germany to protect Venezuela, he made it clear that the United States would go to war to uphold the inviolability of the Western Hemisphere.

Now, according to the implication of the new Neutrality Bill, we will only sell arms. The Latin American nations will have to do their own fighting.

ALTITUDE-PHOBIA

Government aviation officials are probing a new cause of airplane accidents which might be the secret of the mysterious crash in Arkansas recently.

It is the psychological effect on a pilot of years of shooting up and down from high to low altitudes. Medical experts, consulted regarding this, maintain that the eventual effect of high altitudes even on a normal person, may result in a state of unbalance nicknamed altitude-phobia.

FUNMAKER TRIO STARS IN FOX FILM THURSDAY

With new songs from the pens of Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, and comedy furnished by Jack Oakie, Joe Penner, and Ned Sparks, and with something like 150 beautiful girls for background, Paramount's musical, "Collegiate" opens at the Fox theater tomorrow.

The second feature on the program, "Last of the Pagans" a romantic saga of the tropics, starring Mala and Lotus, was produced by M-G-M, which also made "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Trader Horn."

"Collegiate" is concerned with the operation of a girls' seminary, which Oakie inherits from a rich aunt. He, Penner, Ooverman and Ned Sparks undertake to convert the dowdy, old-fashioned college into a modern "charm school" for girls. Frances Langford, the Florida songbird, and Betty Grable, blond beauty, supply the chief feminine appeal in the film.

There is also Betty Jane Cooper in several tap routines.

"Last of the Pagans" is a drama of life in the South Sea Islands, played according to native customs and authentic in every detail. Thrills of pearl diving, battles below the surface with tiger sharks, and other exciting details embellish the love story of a native boy and girl.

George Arliss in "Mr. Hobo" and "The Public Menace" starring Jean Arthur and George Murphy, are the two features playing for the last times today at the Fox.

NOBODY UNDERSELLS SHAW IF HE KNOWS IT
U. S. TIRES Macdonald at 23r

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—They tried to bring former popular Mayor Jimmy Walker back into the local political picture, but the plot fizzled out when Al Smith was chosen by Tammany to head the delegates to the coming Democratic convention.

The Farley-Roosevelt forces thought their support of Walker would embarrass both Leader James J. Dooling and the "walking" ex-Governor. But no one got very excited over the issue, and the tempest refused to stir itself up. Jimmy's political draw is apparently gone forever.

The most ironic part of the setup, however, was the fact that Walker has been a bitter enemy for years both of Al Smith and President Roosevelt. Brown-derby Al made Walker originally. But they soon broke when Smith began to disapprove of Jimmy's conduct, and the latter never forgave him. Roosevelt, on the other hand, was the gentleman in charge at Albany when Walker was so disastrously peppered by the Seabury investigation. Jimmy did not spare his language in denouncing the then Governor for his "mock" trial.

Walker probably decided to choose between the frying pan and the fire—but he's landed, instead, in the deep blue sea.

FIXTURE—Fannie Brice has just signed a contract to appear in the next five editions of the Ziegfeld "Follies." That puts the official seal on Miss Brice as a permanent New York institution.

Fannie has cavorted in the glorified-girl show ever since the edition of 1910. At that time she made her first big success with a song called "Lovely Joe" and after the opening night frolicked at a party given for the cast by Diamond Jim Brady.

Down to the current "Modernistic Moe" her burlesque since then have been highlights of the season's theatrical capers. Twenty years ago she lampooned Theda Bara when that "vamp" was the most glamorous siren of the day. With W. C. Fields she burlesqued "Camille" until everybody on Broadway was coughing with hysteria. Personally, I like best her take-off of an operatic soprano—a caricature which should be enshrined in every opera in the country.

Here's to her—and may she be as loud and as funny as ever.

CURIOUS—It seems that critics always disturb performers, no matter what they write. Ken Woods received a clipping, the other afternoon, which contained a radio columnist's review of one of his programs.

Ken studied the printed report carefully, then wired the fellow:

"Have read with much pleasure your review of my program. Please let me know whether you like it or not."

One Christmas Eve

by Ruth Louise Ayers

It is Christmas Eve on Houseboat Row, squalid river colony. Big Adam, evangelist, holds services in his houseboat Mission, little knowing that his son Dan, lured by two crooks, has got into serious trouble. Dan was paid to hold up a jewelry store but, when he entered the store, found the jeweler murdered! Panic-stricken, he seeks shelter at Luke Conners' flating bar, down the Row from his father's Mission. Meanwhile, the wealthy Vincent Rocke has come to see Luke's daughter Nightingale. He asks her to marry him and slips a ring on her finger. When police come to arrest Dan, charging him with the murder, Nightingale leaves Vincent, simply telling him there has been "trouble." Vincent is stone deaf, but has learned to read lips. He goes into the barroom and, while there, sees a man whisper to his girl that, to get her the rings she wanted he has killed a man!

CHAPTER XXVIII

THE detective who had remained in the back parlor of the Conners boat to question Luke and his daughter sat back in his chair, chewing a cigar.

Nightingale said, "Why do we have to stay here like prisoners? We haven't done anything wrong, except to take in a poor scared kid."

The detective, known as the slow sleuth of the department because he was so deliberate, thought this over for a long time before he answered. His eyes traveled from corner to corner of the room, returning persistently to Nightingale. Finally, he took the cigar out of his mouth.

"Well," he said, "you have to stay here because I'm supposed to get a few details cleared up about tonight's business. Besides, I have to search the place."

Nightingale thought of Vincent Rocke in that other room. Frightened, she clasped her hands together tightly.

But the slow sleuth made no attempt to get up from his chair. He sat there, his eyes tracing a path around the room and back to Nightingale.

SHE twisted Vincent's ring around on her finger. Then, she suddenly tossed her head back defiantly.

"Ask us any questions you please!" she said. "We haven't a thing to hide!"

The detective chewed his cigar thoughtfully.

"I'm not so sure about that," he said at last.

Nightingale stood up, went to the mantlepiece and placed one hand on it.

"If you think there's anything here, why don't you get up and make your search? Every door is unlocked."

Slowly, almost wearily, the detective rose and walked toward her. When he reached her, his hand suddenly shot out and pulled the fingers from the mantlepiece. Without a word, he held her hand out toward her father. The diamond ring she wore gleamed.

"I was wondering what Dan Adam did with the stuff he picked up," he said. "This explains it."

Nightingale saw the blank surprise on her father's face. She fought for calm. Then, the detective was speaking again.

"First thing I noticed when I walked in—that big stone flashing on the girl's hand. It ties things up pretty solid, doesn't it? I guess she put something over on you, too, by the look on your face. Can't believe it yet, can you?"

HE STARTED to strip the ring from her finger, but she jerked away.

"Scared to let me see it?"

"No!" said Nightingale. "I'm ashamed to let you put your hands on it!"

Her father came toward her, dumb questioning in his eyes.

"All right," Nightingale gave in. "Let him take it off and look inside. There are probably initials or something in it."

The ring slipped off. Stepping to the light cast by a lamp, the detective examined it. Inside, in slanting letters, was engraved, "Lila Rocke, 1852."

"I told you so," Nightingale whispered.

"Yuh—and what does that prove? You ain't Lila Rocke, and this ain't 1852!"

"No—I'm not Lila Rocke, but perhaps I'm going to be Nightingale Rocke some day. The ring was given to me tonight by the man who has asked me to marry him. It has been in his family for years—you can see for yourself how many."

"Very pretty story, and well told, too," said the detective.

"It isn't a pretty story. It's the truth! You men have got Dan Adam cornered, but you haven't trapped me! It happens that Vincent Rocke is in the other room now, waiting for me."

LUKE made a surprised exclamation. "Why didn't you say so before?"

The detective cut in. "You mean to say that Vincent Rocke is the man who wants to marry you? As far as I know, all the Rocke sons were married long ago."

Nightingale looked steadily at him. "Not all of them," she said.

He returned her stare. "You don't mean the youngest son—the one that's been stone deaf since he was a kid?"

Her eyes dropped. "Yes—that is Vincent—the one who has asked me to be his wife."

So frank were her words that sudden realization came to the detective that she was speaking the truth.

"If he's here, bring him in," he ordered.

Nightingale brushed past him, hurried out the door and to the room where she had left Vincent. It was empty. She went on to the barroom.

She looked into the room, saw Vincent alone at a table. Except for a couple in another corner of the room, there was no one else at the tables.

As she stood there, Vincent looked up and saw her. He crushed out his cigaret, quickly rose, and came toward her.

The couple across the room did not even notice his going.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.—UP—Sinclair Lewis fans have something in store for them as filming of the Nobel prize winner's "Main Street" nears completion.

Hollywood found it necessary to bring the novel "up to date" when the picture, produced by Warner Brothers, starring Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson, got underway with Archie Mayo directing.

Casey Robinson, scenarist, was given the novel and told to do his best. He began by suggesting a new title, "I Married a Doctor."

Robinson then strode into his job by considering the changes in the manner of living since Lewis penned his novel of small town life.

"Airplanes, better roads, talking pictures and the radio have almost completely removed small towns from isolation. "But the people, their problems, are still the same. So the plot of 'Main Street' hasn't been changed."

The motion picture writer then tells of his revision.

"Certain externals and 'props' have been revised to make the story timely," explains Robinson. "Instead of the doctor bringing his city wife home on a train, they fly in aboard a chartered airplane.

"And instead of the town's social set congregating at church socials, they meet at the new country club adjoining a nine hole golf course.

"The women play contract bridge and know the latest fashions. The men don't talk about real estate deals and crops. They're all concerned with politics.

"So instead of being just the story of a small town," Robinson concludes, "I guess you might call the movie version of 'Main Street' a story of any social set—Park Avenue or Main Street."

Robinson is a husky, greying, former newspaper reporter and during the days of silent pictures was a title writer. Among his successes recently was 'Captain Blood' that sky-rocketed the new star, Errol Flynn, to fame.

Adaptation of literary classics to the modern screen is justified, Robinson contends.

"Magazines, books and pictures put a terrific drain on the capabilities of creative writers," he says.

DAILY COLOR SCOPE

BY REV. LYSKA

TUESDAY FEBRUARY 25

The midnight hours are blended from the deep purple to black vibrations, a swift change and a brilliant flash of warm iridescent rose, pinks, electric blues, until mid-afternoon, then a halo of purple and violet vibrations suffuse and influence legal affairs and business. Evening vibrations blend and dissolve into silver and white forces of beauty and peace of heart and mind.

In the morning hours aid from persons in authority. Practical work will solve puzzling problems. Unexpected gains in finance. Quick action may be needed regarding unusual contacts. Mature judgement points to improvement through associates. If you are inclined to be imprudent, talk to the moon and relieve yourself of erratic emotions, then go out and enjoy a harmonious and pleasant evening.

TO THOSE BORN ON THIS DAY

Go easy and steady; new opportunities are arising. Delightful adventures are in store for the day. If you feel depressed, dress in your gayest, and the evening will reveal new beauties and inspirations.

Foreigners in Kobe are under detention.

Private messages to Japanese here said the revolt was planned and led by the so-called "young officers" of the army—probably the same group of lieutenant colonels who planned the outbreak of May 15, 1932 which resulted in the assassination of Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai.

"The revolt is confined to one division (possibly a regiment since no full divisions are quartered in Tokio) of the army" one message said.

Diplomatic messages said the foreign office in Tokio was open as usual.

RIGHT CARE OF KIDNEYS PROLONGS LIFE

Even as you are reading this article, you are making poisons within your body. If they are allowed to accumulate too long, they will prove as deadly as any strong toxic substance. However, the body has an efficient method of removing such toxins as they form in the tissues, and they are carried to one of the channels of elimination and there gotten rid of. Part of the elimnative system of the body is located in the two kidneys. The kidneys are in close communication with the blood, and filter from it poisonous wastes which are flushed out of the body in solution.

The kidneys are about four and one-half inches long and their task of cleansing the blood stream is so important that you lose your life if you lose both kidneys. Man can live if he has only one healthy kidney, but can not live if both are gone. It is interesting to note that about one person out of every sixteen hundred is born with only one kidney and usually gets along all right.

Each kidney is formed of many small tubes, or tubules, twisted together, which collect waste from the capillaries carrying the blood, the waste material passing through the thin wall of the blood vessel and also the delicate wall of the tubule. From each tube, the waste collects in a small pocket in the kidney and from there drains down to the bladder by way of the ureter.

The kidneys have this mysterious power of extracting wastes from the blood and throwing them out with water, but they do not extract nourishment from the blood stream. Normally, the liquid output of the kidneys contains no nourishment. When the kidneys become diseased, as in Bright's disease, they reverse the normal process, and the liquid waste then contains nourishing substances.

We do not understand how the kidneys do their work during life and can not explain the intelligence which is shown by the healthy kidney in the way that it refuses to excrete food but permits garbage materials to pass. It is just as though the kidney said to the delivery boys of the blood who are distributing groceries: "Keep on with your work," and said to the garbage boys, "This way out."

You should try to keep your kidneys as healthy as possible, inasmuch as they will no longer remove poisons efficiently after they become diseased. The kidneys are like any other organ—they thrive on moderate use, but react adversely to abuse. Those who eat correctly, drink enough water, and observe other good habits of health, are doing the best things for giving the kidneys a long, healthy life.

I have for distribution a number of articles to be sent to those who want additional information. These articles are called: WATER AND KIDNEY ELIMINATION.....; OUR KIDNEYS.....; ALBUMIN.....; BRIGHT'S DISEASE.....; WANDERING KIDNEY..... You may have any or all of these articles forwarded to you when you desire them. Simply ask for those you want, send your letter in care of this newspaper, and enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and ten cents.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Exopthalmic Goitre)

Question: I. H. writes: "Is the metabolism test considered absolute proof of the presence of exopthalmic goitre? My mother has a blood pressure of 190 — do you think she has hardening of the arteries?"

Answer: In the patient with exopthalmic goitre, the report on the test of the basal metabolic rate will show that the metabolism is considerably higher than normal. This type of thyroid derangement is also termed hyperthyroidism; the term hyperthyroidism referring to an over active thyroid gland. In the patient with exopthalmic goitre, the heart beat is rapid, protrusion of the eyes may be produced, and nervousness is a marked symptom. In order that the test of the basal metabolic rate may be accurate as possible it is necessary that the patient be entirely relaxed and for this reason a rest period of one-half hour or three quarters of an hour is advised before the test is made. When the patient is excited, the metabolic rate may be somewhat increased during the time of the test, leading to an incorrect conclusion. In general, when the report on the test shows that the metabolism is markedly increased above normal, this may be relied upon as definite evidence that the thyroid is over active and thus the presence of an exopthalmic goitre is indicated. Sometimes, when the patient is unaccustomed to taking the physical examination and is therefore on a nervous tension, the first result obtained may not be the true one, and a second test may provide a more correct estimate of the basal metabolic rate. Without examining your mother it is impossible to tell you whether or not she has developed hardening of the arteries. Hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure frequently occur in the same patient; however, it is possible for the blood pressure to be too high without the production of arterial hardening.

STORM— and she missed the school bus home

Other mothers may want to read what Betty Lou's mother wrote the Safeway family

Safeway
4th and Jackson Streets
Oakland, California

Gentlemen:

One of the kindest things any Safeway employee could do was done for my little daughter.

We live in the country and my little girl takes her lunch to school. We had always told her that if she was in trouble to go to our Safeway store.

This day her lunch was stolen. Then a bad storm came up and the children were dismissed early. But in some way she missed her bus. Betty Lou became confused and didn't report back to her teacher. She went to the Safeway and told the grocer her troubles.

He bought her a lunch and then took his own car and brought her home to us.

He could have phoned—yes—but he knew my husband was not at all well and that I could not drive a car.

Sincerely,

—from an actual letter on file—

THE SELLING of groceries is only one part of your Safeway grocer's work.

He strives first of all to be a trustworthy neighbor to every family in his community.

This way he makes new friends for his store. And these new friends soon become his regular customers as they learn about the money-saving food values he offers.

How can your Safeway grocer sell the choice foods you want at lower retail prices? The reason is very simple.

He does not work alone. He has joined with an efficient team of other skilled food experts.

Safeway buyers in the farming areas, shippers, marketing men, home economists and grocers cooperate to cut wasteful costs all along the line from farm to your table.

It is these savings made in distribution which permit your Safeway grocer to sell you the choicest foods for less.

It is these savings, too, which make it possible for the Safeway family to pay back to the farmer a larger share of every retail food dollar you spend in Safeway stores.

And your Safeway grocer also has his reward. He earns a better-than-average salary because he is doing a job the people want done . . . S. A. Skaggs, Division Manager for Safeway and Piggly Wiggly Stores, 5725 East Fourteenth Street, Oakland, California.

How much did you spend for food last month? Check up. Then trade at your neighborhood Safeway grocer's for 30 days and compare your total savings!

Daytime Pleats Demand Special Commendation

By IRENE VAIL

New York — Judging from the interest in pleats we shall soon be a pleated population. Much has already been written about pleats, especially for evening, but the new look they have in daytime developments deserves special commendation. For instance, the use of semi-sheers, the pleats in bodice and at hips, the dress that is accordion-pleated from the waistline, flaring widely at the hem, the jacket or cape ensemble, with frock and little wrap entirely pleated.

Small prints are especially chic when pleated, and while this is a style that is being promoted for resort and cruise wear now, it is one that is destined for summer promotions as well. The allover pleated frock or costume is obviously a high style item.

The upkeep presents a new problem. Everyone knows the responsibility of making pleats behave as their designers want them to behave. Nothing could be more determined as a message of "straight lines," or more accurately "the trend away from curved, fitted lines," than Schiaparelli's nightshirt coat. Aside from the homely derivation of this coat, there is much to consider in it—its silhouette possibilities for suits and coats presenting a new conception of loose-hanging lines that are definitely different from the circular flare of the swagger. There is something of the smock in the idea.

There is new inspiration in the striking fitted coat which adds wide tuxedo revers of such a soft fabric that they may be crushed into a narrow panel line on each side at front or thrown back into a dramatic waist-length cape.

As befits the season, sparkling evening dresses, spangled, beaded or embroidered, or of a fabric which sparkles, such as the lames—gold and silver—are in demand. There are several gay holiday reds, one called "flirt" and the other "dancing red," that seem to call for special mention among the dazzling list of colors prepared for the new year. There are also several greens on that list, one called "Tyrol" being perhaps nearest to holly. There's another called "primeval," a bit on the gay side, and then a variety of yellow, gray, and blue greens, any one of which would be swell for the southlands and several of which would be good for any place.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "What is the correct dress for a lady, as well as a gentleman, when attending by themselves a dinner dance in a leading hotel of any city, on a week night? Also, would the attire be the same were the evening Saturday?—Z. M."

ANSWER: The lady may wear an afternoon dress of the dressier type. Something in metallic cloth, velvet or silk would be suitable for weekdays or Saturday nights. Or wishing to dress somewhat more elaborately on a Saturday night or any weekday night, a lady could quite comfortably wear a dinner dress. Nothing as decollete as an evening gown should be worn to a public dinner dance. If a party of friends were dining out on a special occasion or celebrating some important event, they could arrange among them to dress formally if they wished. But for the average weekday or Saturday night dinner dance at a hotel, the girl wears a dressy afternoon dress or a dinner dress; the man, a dark business suit and white shirt.

Guide to Charm

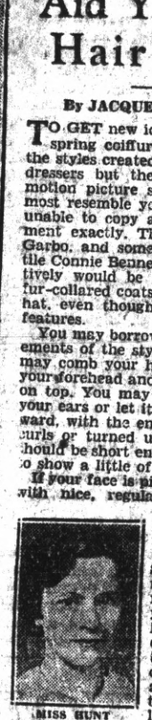

Screen May Aid You for Hair Styles

By JACQUELINE HUNT

TO GET new ideas for your new spring coiffure, study not only the styles created by famous hairdressers but the photographs of motion picture stars whose faces most resemble yours. You may be unable to copy any one arrangement exactly. The long bob that Garbo, and sometimes the versatile Connie Bennett wear so seductively would be impractical with fur-collared coats and the average hat, even though it flatters your features.

You may borrow some of the elements of the style, however. You may comb your hair smoothly off your forehead and wear it straight on top. You may brush it behind your ears or let it fall a little forward, with the ends in soft, fluffy curls or turned under. Your hair should be short enough in the back to show a little of your neck.

If your face is piquant or blessed with nice, regular features you may try the center part and high soft curls of Gladys Swarthout. If this arrangement makes your forehead look too high comb a few little tendrils down to make a light fringe that softens the line.

MISS HUNT

If you have nice features and a beautifully molded head, you may try the angel coiffure that calls for unparted hair. The hair is worn fairly short but combed down from the crown without a part. The ends are then turned into a double row of restrained curls all the way around the head. But you must have a nicely shaped head to start with or the effect will be disappointing.

You should also copy the motion picture stars' methods of keeping their hair beautiful. They brush and brush, shampooing frequently and using an oil or pomade on the dry ends to prevent slipping and that harsh, neglected look we often see. Usually they have just the lightest kind of a wave and have their hair done every day.

Of course, few of us can afford to give the time necessary for a daily waveset and frequent shampoos, but we can brush every night and morning, massage the scalp thoroughly once or twice a week and shampoo regularly. Few women shampoo often enough, although it is much more important to have the hair clean than to have it perfectly waved.

Hair that is glossy and clean lends itself more readily to new arrangements. It has nice highlights and a pleasing aroma, and with a little practice you can set it yourself into becoming waves and ringlets. Many women have been lifted out of the "plain" category simply by giving extra attention to the care and arrangement of their hair. So get busy, girl, and find that gay and glamorous new coiffure before time to shop for your new Easter bonnet!

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "For about two months I have been putting witch hazel on my face after I have washed. I have been using brunette powder, but it doesn't seem to cover the pimples on my face and my skin is cakey. Do you think witch hazel causes this? If so, please send me the name of a brand of powder and astringent. I am fourteen and a dark blonde.

—Carolyn."

Witch hazel helps to dry up the excess oil in your skin and tightens the pores, so that wouldn't cause the powder to cake. However, you probably need something a little stronger. You should also be more careful about your diet. Discontinue candies, sodas and rich foods that make the skin more susceptible to acne and oiliness. You should never expect your face powder to conceal pimples—it won't. You have to clear them up before you can expect to have a velvety skin. I am mailing to you a copy of my leaflet on the treatment of acne. In the future when you wish a personal reply to your questions, will you please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope?

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I am very skinny. So much so that my arms and legs seem crooked and bony. Are there simple exercises that would develop them?—Pauline."

The first thing for you to do is to bring your weight up to normal. If you are very much underweight, it would be a good idea to consult your doctor before attempting home treatment. I have a booklet on "dieting to gain weight" you will find helpful. In addition, you may need more rest and sleep and cod liver oil. Exercise only enough to pep up your appetite. Walking, dancing or possibly skating should be adequate—at least until you have gained a few pounds.

QUESTION: "Can you give me a good exercise for developing the chest?—May."

Lie on a flat chest or low wood en box on your back and hold a heavy book or other weight in each hand. Raise the hands upward, holding the elbows stiff. Now lower the arms slowly to the side and backward, without bending the elbows at all. Repeat, raising and lowering the weight slowly from ten to twenty times.

Veils Are Back, With Ye Olde Chenille Dots

By IRENE VAIL

New York — A while back we were chortling over the idea that women once veiled their faces and endured tickles, if not torment, so that they might be fashionable. The custom seemed about as obsolete as that of veiling women of the East—a custom gradually going out, if not entirely gone. But the latest French hats to arrive and be passed around have to do with a revival of this good old custom, good for business and good for one's appearance, since there's nothing that prettifies a woman up more than a becoming veil.

Well, the new ones are in colors, as well as black, and have ye olde chenille dots too. They are as flattering as ever and will do worlds toward making the Easter bonnet worth another theme song.

With every shipment, with every comment of those back from Paris, the importance of veils grows. Many hats are literally shrouded in veils, their gossamer meshes and bright colors forming misty effects atop hats or swathing throats. Every French creator spreads it, and there is such a variety of patterns, so many colors combined—red, green, blue, gold, for example—and so many ways in which these are draped, that they offer variety and interest. Veils not only trim hats but they have an added duty, for they are being tied scarf-fashion around the neck in huge, transparent bows, or, when patterned or dotted, are made into veilettes to be worn with tailored suits. This gives just the note of femininity which is suggested to soften the masculine type costume.

Because there are mannish fedoras to wear with those mannish suits don't for one moment think fashion is snatching from you your great moment—when you are as feminine and alluring as it has seen fit for nature and your milliner to manage. Veils are new and so, too, are the jabots and choux to be worn under the chin—a help in rebuilding the picture of the glamorous ningties.

Goodness knows, hats can stand a bit of decor—they have been pretty trying for years, what with being crammed over the ears one season, perched on the back or side of the head the next, and all the rest of it. For the moment hats seem to be more or less poised—as one might expect them to be—with a forward tendency. They are effectively modeled and, to add to all this, coquettishly veiled. One just cannot help associating veils and coquetry. Every so often there has been some reason to expect the veil's return, as when they have appeared as a casual sort of finish for a brim, but those veils, I would have you know, often cover the face and are either tied or securely pinned at the back after the Gibson Girl tradition. Some have choux of the veiling fore and aft. It's all too amusing, and altogether different.

A Tapioca Idea

Pour ½ cup boiling water over 2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca and stir until it thickens. Chill to lukewarm. Combine 2 egg whites, ¼ cup granulated sugar, a pinch salt and the softened tapioca and beat until stiff as a meringue. Fold in 1 tablespoon each chopped nuts and candied pineapple, finely chopped, 3 tablespoons shredded coconut, ¼ teaspoon vanilla and ½ teaspoon lemon extract. Steam for 10 minutes in lightly greased molds. Put a piece of waxed paper over the molds before putting on the covers. Serve warm with the following custard sauce:

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "What is the conduct of an engaged couple at a party? —D. M."

ANSWER: It is the privilege of an engaged couple to spend more time together than with anyone else. Everyone seems to expect it. At the same time, they should not isolate themselves entirely from the rest of the company. Rather they should mingle with each other's friends or relatives, saving the greater share of their attention for each other. Love-making when others are around is, of course, taboo.

Inexpensive Meats Make Tasty Meals

By JUDITH WILSON

DO YOU want to serve something different from the usual chops and roasts? Something nutritious, lavorful and at the same time economical? Then follow the custom of famous chefs who cater to sophisticated palates by serving sweetbreads, liver, kidneys, heart and tongue in appetizing dishes.

These less used cuts of meat are wholesome and rich in minerals and vitamins. They sound expensive, yet they are the cheapest meats you can buy. Since these meats are delicate and distinctive in flavor they require careful handling and cooking.

DINNERS

Onion Soup
Fried Sweetbreads with Mushroom Sauce
Creamy Mashed Potatoes
Peas, French Style
Orange-Endive Salad
Strawberry Ice Cream
Honey Cookies Coffee

Stuffed Egg Halves on Tomato Slices
Stewed Kidneys and Rice
Buttered Lima Beans
Compote of Fresh and Canned Fruit
Tea with Lemon

Remember to remove the skin and tough tissues from liver and cook it slowly at a low temperature; remove the fatty tissue from kidneys and the thin encasing membrane from sweetbreads. For more pleasing flavor parboil sweetbreads and brains—also kidneys, if you like the flavor and texture to be more delicate.

Here are recipes:

Stewed Kidneys

Skin and cook 3 lamb kidneys in ½ water for 10 minutes. Cut into ½-inch pieces and put into 1¼ cups water to stew with 1 sliced onion. Add salt and pepper to taste and cook slowly until tender, but not too soft. Wash 1 cup rice and put to cook in 2 quarts rapidly boiling water. When nearly done, drain through a colander, put in a saucepan and set on the back of the stove to steam for 30 minutes. Add a lump of butter and more seasonings if needed to the kidneys and pour over the rice to serve. This makes 6 servings.

Fried Sweetbreads

Remove the membranes from sweetbreads, cover with cold water and soak for 30 minutes. Drain, cover with boiling water, allowing 1 teaspoon salt and 1½ tablespoons lemon juice to each quart of water. Simmer for 20 minutes, drain and cool. For a pleasing flavor soak the sweetbreads for 1 hour in French dressing to which a few slices of onion have been added. Dry the sweetbreads, dip in fine dry crumbs, then in beaten egg, and again in crumbs. Drop into deep hot fat and cook until golden brown. Drain and serve immediately with the following sauce:

Mushroom Sauce

Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add 2 tablespoons flour and blend. Add ½ cup cream, ½ cup liquor drained from canned mushrooms and ½ teaspoon salt. Cook, stirring constantly until the mixture is thick and creamy. Add ¾ cup canned sliced mushrooms and a dash of pepper.

Beef Heart Cakes

Soak ¼ of a beef heart in cold water several hours. Dry well and put through a coarse food chopper, discarding all veins. Put 2 cups raw potatoes through the grinder with the heart and 1 large onion. Add 2 beaten eggs, salt and pepper to season and 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Mix thoroughly and form into small cakes with a spoon. Fry until brown on all sides in hot fat then add 1 cup boiling water and bake in a hot oven 20 minutes. Make a gravy from the pan sauce and serve very hot. This makes about 18 small cakes.

MODERN WOMEN

Maybe This Husband Pays His Wife a Greater Compliment Than She Knows

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

WHEN a man assigns his wife a definite role and gives her the time and money to accomplish it well, there hardly seems a question as to her duty or pleasure in the matter.

So many wives complain that husbands shut them out of their business life and makes it difficult, if not impossible for them to help, even in the most trivial way, that I feel this woman who complains because her husband does make use of her social talents in order to cultivate what he considers the right kind of people, should be proud rather than chagrined.

MRS. MARTIN

The husband of the woman who writes me that her role bores her is paying her a great compliment. Were he not sure that her hospitable gestures would be graceful ones and that she was not going to be a credit to him, he would find excuses to leave her at home. She would not like that, I am sure.

"My dear Mrs. Martin: My problem is a curious one, for it does not concern any heart interest, unless you consider trying to live as my husband wants me to live to include that. We are a childless couple and have prospered. My husband is ambitious and has a good position with a company in which many of the men earn excellent salaries and live high. Twice he has persuaded me to move into better quarters in order to keep our end up, as he puts it, and he insists that I must entertain the wives of his business associates and dress and live like them.

Doesn't Like Bridge

"Now, Mrs. Martin, this simply bores me stiff. I don't like to play bridge and drink cocktails, and while I like to go out to dance and all that, I think it's a nuisance to be compelled to do it and, to associate with these people just because of my husband's business. I claim that if we saved the money all this costs, we would be better off in the long run.

"I am willing to help my husband, but I just can't see that this merry-go-round is a real help. We all buy clothes we could get along without and stay up night after night when we should be in bed. I'm sick of moving about and having to be sure everything is just as these dames think it should be. I am proud of my husband, but I don't like the way he is reacting to this social business. Am I wrong?

Yes, I think you are wrong, although I must admit a bit of sympathy for you.

Of course, you realize that most wives would consider your lot a most enviable one and would welcome the excuse you have for spending more money than you want or need to spend. That in itself makes your case an unusual one.

It might be that your husband's judgment was at fault in some of the details of his scheme to climb to the top of the ladder. It is not necessary to keep moving and keep buying in order to have home acceptable to your prosperous friends.

Look to Future

Might I suggest that when you do make any purchases for your home you make them with an eye to the future. Avoid buying high-style things — things appropriate only for the moment and for your temporary abode. Look at furniture purchases and the buying of everything else for your home as a better investment than that. Even though you may not be able to buy all you want, or need, make a point of buying lastingly good pieces and of having your appointments in good taste rather than acquiring the latest and most spontaneous thing, which isn't always good taste by any means.

This is also true of your wardrobe, if you are seeing the same women and a critical set they most likely are, you must be careful to dress well. I mean just that. Don't attempt to buy every new thing that comes out. Wardrobe like household possessions, should be correlated.

I do think, since your husband has some record of success behind him, that his method must be a good one for his particular line of work. Were I in your place I would concede that fact and act accordingly.

That you do not care much for the wives of his associates is unfortunate but by no means tragic. Possibly your husband doesn't care very much about them either, and it's just possible they may feel very much as you do—a possibility you may not have considered.

You are entitled to your nights off duty and to your own associates, but I would not advise you to sidetrack the round of hospitality which your husband considers necessary. Otherwise he is sure to hold you responsible for any misadventures that might come his way, even though your actions may not have had any effect on the proposition.

You and Your Child

Special Training Aids Child's Tastes

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

"ANY child brought up in such beautiful surroundings would cultivate an appreciation of beauty," one mother remarked. She and another mother were discussing the talents of a wealthy neighbor. "I agree with you," the second mother said, "that with such a background a child has a better chance to develop good taste. But it takes more than merely surrounding a child with objects of art to make him see beauty. A child needs to have beauty called to his attention by someone who really takes delight in color and form. By pointing out what is graceful, harmonious and in good taste, a child learns to recognize for himself when these qualities exist in other things."

MRS. GOWARD

It is true that a child's tastes are dictated by example. The wise parent, therefore, does not belittle a child's ability to understand such things. Rather she attempts to share with him what gives her pleasure. She will ask him to come and see how pretty the egg yolks look in the blue mixing bowl. She will call him to the window to watch the sunset with her. Or ask him to help her decide on material for draperies.

Taking her cue from kindergarten instructors, she will provide her young child with colored papers for cutting out, and bright crayons to work with. At this stage of a child's artistic development crude bright colors bring forth an appreciative response. Have a child stretch a width of red tissue paper across a window and then let him experiment with two and three thicknesses of the same paper to compare the difference when the light shines through.

Assign an older child to the job of pasting snapshots into the picture album. Encourage him to experiment with the arrangement of the pictures on the page. Or let him arrange the flowers, or lay out cookies on a plate in symmetrical order. For children there are many tasks within the home that afford artistic expression. Devise such pastimes when they do not exist. Teach him to see beauty and to strive for it.

HOT VIANDS FOR COLD WEATHER

CHICKEN POT PIE: 2½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, dash of paprika, 2 cups diced cooked chicken, 1¼ cups milk or chicken stock, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 6 to 8 unbaked baking-powder biscuits, rolled ¼ inch thick. Combine ingredients. Turn into greased casserole and bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 25 minutes, stirring mixture twice in first 10 minutes. Then place biscuits on mixture; return to oven and bake 12 to 15 minutes, or until the biscuits are browned. Serves four.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly cheer and buoyant and full of sunshine.

Forthey can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a sick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

If takes these good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist substitutes. 25c at drug stores. © 1936 C. M. Co.

Arbitration Is Plea Made By Ships' Clerks

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25—UP—Members of the Ships' Clerks Association who are employed on a monthly wage scale today notified employers they desired to arbitrate differences through the National Labor Relations board.

Increased wages equivalent to longshoremen's pay recently were obtained by members of the association paid on a day to day basis, but no increases were granted clerks on the monthly wage scale.

Other waterfront developments included the arrival of Ivan Hunter, first vice-president of the International Seamen's Union, from Detroit, to establish a new West Coast Seamen's Union replacing the Sailors of the Pacific, whose charter was revoked by the national I. WOMAN JURY MAY DECIDE M'CORD FATE try of Attorney Thomas M. Carlson of Richmond as one of her counsel and his declaration that he is not receiving a penny for his services but volunteered them in an effort to see that all the facts concerning the charge itself and the woman's labors for the county were brought to light. Carlson will be associated with Ralph Wight, who has been the defendant's attorney for some time past.

The prosecution will be handled by District Attorney Francis P. Healey and Deputy District Attorney Rex Boyer.

SUBPOENAS SERVED

Subpoenas were being served on various people by both prosecution and defense this afternoon. One of the first witnesses will be county Auditor D. M. Teeter. It is understood that the defense will call into court all the persons who testified before the grand jury when the McCord case was under consideration by that body.

JEWEL MATTER REVIVED

There are two indictments pending against Mrs. McCord but a severance of the cases was obtained a short time ago by defense counsel and the trial tomorrow will be predicated on the first true bill. This will bring up for review pawning of jewels owned by Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. McCord's effort to dispose of them and testimony by Mrs. Iona Booth, of Richmond, suspended aide of Mrs. McCord. Mrs. Booth testified before the grand jury that she presented the claim for Mrs Jackson's "transportation" and that at Mrs. McCord's direction she placed the money paid on the warrant in Mrs. McCord's bank account in Richmond. Mrs. McCord assertedly saying she was "out" that amount in her handling of Mrs. Jackson's jewels. The warrant allegedly was approved by Mrs. McCord before being presented for payment.

WOMEN SHOW INTEREST

Interest centering in the case leads court attaches to expect the biggest group of spectators since trial of the Filipino "burial alive" murder cases in July, 1933.

As a coincidence, it is likely, unless excused by peremptory challenge or some other cause, the jury that will decide the guilt or innocence of Mrs. McCord will be composed largely of women. In the panel from which the jury will be drawn the fair sex is greatly predominant, as will be seen from perusal of the appended list:

JURY PANEL

Those on the jury panel are: Mrs. Aurelia Toffoli, Mrs. Alberta Hailes, Mrs. Katherine Johnson, Mrs. Grace Harmon, Mrs. Theresa A. Powers, Mrs. Nellie Lambrecht, Mrs. Beulah Harvey, V. G. Bennett, Mrs. Clara R. Poulsen, Mrs. Vivian Russell, Mrs. Amy B. Williams, Charles Kaiser, May Shaffer, Roy Atwood, Mrs. Mary Moyle and Mrs. Lucita B. Rock of Richmond; Mrs. Mary A. Dictatorship And Terrorism Charged In General Ouster

Pierre S. Du Pont and John J. Raskob, prominent American Liberty Leaguers, as indicating the trend of government.

SENATORS BATTLE

"The charge that the present president is endeavoring to create a dictatorship, is not as unlikely as many people believe," he roared.

Soon the debate became a free-for-all. It found the two West Virginia senators scrapping bitterly over administration of WPA in their state. Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has promised a thorough investigation.

Hastings read the charges against WPA administration in West Virginia, made yesterday by Senator Rush D. Holt, whose brother recently was dismissed from a WPA job in that state. This brought Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia, into the debate. He asked Hastings to await an "impartial" investigation before repeating such second hand charges. Holt stuck his hands in his coat pockets and called out:

"Does my colleague deny the truth of one, single solitary fact?"

Neely said he would reply in due time. Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, Texas, was drawn in when he mockingly inquired if it was necessary to "wash all the dirty linen of all the 48 states."

"I suspect," retorted Hastings, "that if we got after the facts we would find the same condition in the WPA in Texas."

"I suspect," Connally replied, that the Senator from Delaware doesn't know what he's talking about.' He described Delaware as a state with "three counties when the tide is out, 1 1-2 when the tide is in."

and stomped his feet and swung his arms to restore circulation. Suddenly he toppled over, into the waters of the bay. He made no outcry. Darkness and rain prevented companions from rescuing him.

The autopsy by Dr. Cunningham revealed that the man was dead before he struck the water.

The crew of police and firemen dragged the bay until late Monday night and then resumed operations at an early hour yesterday morning.

Deceased was a native of San Francisco. He leaves his widow, Anna.

Funeral services are pending at the Wilson and Kratzer chapel.

the damage done. Boards were nailed across the front of the building.

HITS BUILDING

According to an investigation made by Richmond police officers, Hansen and his companion were driving toward Oakland and were in the center lane of traffic. Another car, directly in front of them, made a left hand turn to go up Barnett avenue. Investigators say the driver was making the proper signals. Hansen, police say, swerved out to pass the car making the turn. He realized that to avoid striking the other car, police say, he would have to go over the curb at the southwestern corner.

His machine—a 1932 model Buick coach, went over the curbing and crashed into the corner of the building. The front end of the car was almost completely wrecked; windows in the car were shattered and the steering wheel was broken into two pieces. It is believed that Hansen's injuries were caused from being hurled against the steering wheel.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

The injured men were placed in a Ryan ambulance and rushed to the Richmond Cottage Hospital where they were treated by Dr. L. H. Fraser.

As the Hansen car was piled up with camping equipment, it is believed that the men had been on a camping trip and were returning homeward when the crash occurred.

San Francisco police were asked by local officers to contact relatives of the two men.

U. S. Prisoner Is Ordered Freed

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25—UP—Federal Judge Michael J. Roche today ordered Ray Lagomarsino, 29, confessed robber of the postoffice at Colma, freed from Alacatraz Island prison on writ of habeas corpus.

Lagomarsino was sentenced to 20 years imprisonment. Judge Roche ruled the sentence was duplication of punishment for a single offense and said Lagomarsino had served sufficient time.

could be reached and with this understanding, they again retired. Within 25 minutes they were back in court again with the verdict freeing Andrus.

SOBRIETY THE ISSUE

In Attorney Carlson's closing address to the jury he stressed the fact that Andrus was a workingman and on the evening of the fatality was enjoying himself within the limit of his means by attending a dance and taking a few drinks. He traced his movements during the hours preceding the fatality and contended that he was doing nothing out of the ordinary. Although four witnesses, including one physician had testified during the trial that Andrus was under the influence of liquor, an equal number of defense witnesses were equally positive as to his sobriety.

The case went to the jury at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon following earnest and eloquent summation of the case by Attorney Thomas M. Carlson for the defendant and District Attorney Francis P. Healey for the prosecution, and the charge of Judge Johnston covering the law in such cases.

The main issue involved was whether the defendant was sober at the time of the accident. In his own defense on the stand on Monday he admitted taking a couple of drinks of wine and one highball but denied that they had affected him. He claimed that the injuries he suffered accounted for the fact that he appeared dazed when he arrived at the Richmond Cottage Hospital for treatment. His contention was that Miss Christensen failed to make the turn coming into Garrity Flat and crashed into his car in the right hand lane of traffic.

The indictment of Andrus came at the insistence of a brother of Miss Christensen, an attorney of San Francisco, who insisted upon placing the matter before the grand jury.

You're a funny talking man to be selling cigarettes. You talk like they are cure-alls.

I've known this for a long time . . . cigarettes cause no ills and cure no ailments.

You mean ALL cigarettes . . .

Yes, at some time or other I have just about tried them all and what I say goes for all of them.

Seriously . . .

There is probably only one man on earth who would believe it if we told you that a cigarette would cure what ails you.

On the other hand . . .

There are millions of smokers who will testify, without publicity, as to the pleasure and enjoyment which they get from smoking a good cigarette.
